

Raw and bio honey since 1996

Cooking is a form of art... So is honey production.

About us

Established in 1996 as a family-run honey production business, Zet 1 Ltd has maintained its identity and company values thanks to our guiding principle of high quality production. That also helps us keep our customers happy.

Our mission is to deliver raw honey of the highest quality to the end consumer. The key to fulfilling our mission is to select our honey from local bee farmers.

We've been offering bio-certified produce since 2014.

Every different type of honey has a distinct taste, colour, scent and story. We select 6 types of honey produced from bees located in East Bulgaria. Find it on the following pages.

White Honey

White honey is pancakes' best friend

White honey's structure makes it an excellent toast spread option. The produce is gathered in the summer, in the foot of the mountains in Eastern Bulgaria where you'll find a wide variety of herbs and trees. White honey is perfect for pancakes, porridge, shakes, smoothies, and other breakfast food.

Linden Honey

Greatly scented soufflé

Linden honey produce is gathered in July when Linden trees blossom. High quality linden honey has a distinctive scent of linden and is moderately sweet. That makes it a suitable ingredient for moderately sweetened desserts. Linden honey is also popular as a home remedy when one is down with the flu. This is due to its antibacterial properties.

Lavender Honey

A pile of pancakes with a dash of lavender honey.

Lavender honey has a distinctive scent and a sweet and sour taste. The produce is collected in July when lavender fields are blossoming. Lavender is considered to have relaxing and sedative properties. One might consider a bit of lavender honey before bed a good way to wind down.

Acacia Honey

Tofu has never been sweeter

Acacia honey produce is gathered in June, when acacia trees blossom. Acacia honey is yellow to almost transparent in colour, just like water. Its taste and scent are neutral. It's great if you'd like to add it to foods and drinks without altering their taste.

Oak Honey

Spice up a cocktail by adding a bit of oak honey

Rich in flavour, oak honey could be a perfect addition to your favourite mocktail or a glass of lemonade. It varies in colour - from dark brown to black. It's sweet and sour, with a light hint of bitterness. It's considered to be helpful if you suffer from anemia thanks to its rich properties. Oak honey produce is gathered in July and August. This is the only type of honey which is not produced from blossom nectar but from the sweet nectar bees collect from the surface of oak tree leaves.

Rose Honey

Rose honey is a combination of white honey and rose oil. Rose oil is produced via steam distillation of fresh rose petals. Enjoy the taste and aroma of 3 rose blossoms in a 230 gr jar. Rose oil is considered to improve digestion and detoxify the lungs and gall. Rose honey goes well with yoghurt , fresh fruits and cereal.
